GREAT BRITAIN.

THE COMING RACE.

New Castle-on-Tyne, May 13.—Hanlon is not expected here before the end of the week. Elliot was out twice yesterday. In the morning he had a slight trial with Feeley, of Barrow-in-Furness. Eliott, at only thirty-two strokes to the minute rowed steadily away from Feeley.

"CARDINAL" NEWMAN.

London, May 13.—Rev. Dr. John Henry Newman, replying to the consistorial messages announcing his elevation to the cardinalate, made a long speech. He said he would hereafter, as he had in the past, resist with all his powers the spirit of liberalism in religion. The doctrine that there is no positive truth in religion, that one creed is as good as another—and this is the teaching which is gaining substance and force daily—is inconsistent with the recognition that one religion is true.

SPAIN.

COMMUNAL ELECTIONS.

Madrid, May 13.—Communal elections throughout Spain largely favor the government. Martinez, leader of the centralists, has announced his intention to support the government.

POSSIBLE MARRIAGE.

It is reported that there is a possibility of the marriage of the crown prince of Austria to the infanta Maria Del Pilar, King Alfonso's sister. The crown prince was born August 1858; the infanta, June 4th, 1861.

THE EAST.

SWITZERLAND.

CRIME AND CASUALTY.

Horrible Wife Murder and Suicide at Providence--Irvington, Pa., in Ashes.

UXORICIDE AND SUICIDE.

FIRES.

Cleveland, May 13.—Several hotels and other buildings near the depot at Irvington, Pa., a village about twenty miles east of Warren, Pa., on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad, were destroyed by fire this morning. The fire is still raging. The entire town is threatened with destruction. The fire department from Warren has been telegraphed for and is now en route. Telegraphic communication has been interrupted. Further particulars as soon as possible.

SENT UP.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 13.—Alex. Barlow, cashier of the Fishkill bank, convicted of embezzlement, has been sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

THE NEGRO EXODUS.

What the Relief Managers say of the Movement.

St. Louis, May 13.—It has been decided by the colored refugee relief board of St. Louis to send the Rev. John Turner, colored, a member and officer of that board, to the east, to present to the people of that section all the facts so far known relating to the negro exodus, with a view to exciting their sympathy and co-operation in behalf of the refugees. The board, at its meeting last night, adopted a resolution stating that they have received information from their accredited agents, and also from public agents in Kansas, that refugees who have gone or been sent there have found work at fair wages. Gen. Conway denies being in favor of encouraging emigration from the south. He does not believe in urging negroes to leave their homes or labor, but he says those who have already left their places or plantations and are on the river banks awaiting transportation north, should not only be permitted to come, but should be brought up by every available means. He says that if the project of chartering steamers to bring them from their camps is carried out, the vessels will probably be obtained and outfitted on the Ohio River, where there are plenty of friends of the movement and abundance of funds to further the plan. He claims to be backed by a number of very wealthy philanthropists in the east, and says there will be no lack of money to carry out any scheme to aid the refugees which may be agreed upon. Nothing will be done towards bringing the emigrants up the river till the Quaker gentlemen who left home yesterday have reported the condition they find the negroes in at the points they intend visiting.

National Miller's Association.

Chicago, May 13.—The sixth annual convention of the National Miller's Association met at the Grand Pacific hotel to-day, six hundred of the nine hundred members being present, also A. Dow, president of the Chicago Board of Trade. Mayor Carter H. Harrison made the welcoming address. The president, George Bain, responded, and delivered the annual address. His principal recommendations are that the association be organized as a corporation on a legal basis for the purpose of carrying out suits regarding patents; that a patent attorney be appointed to look to the interests of the association as against the encroachments of patentees; that the success attending their efforts against the impositions of the Cochrane patent should encourage them to wage warfare against the Demchfield patentees, and that a better system of grading and inspection be adopted.

The Coal Interests.

New York, May 13.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company the annual report was read. It shows that for the year ending December 31st, 1878, there was a profit in the business of the company proper of $440,971, and the loss on the leased lines of $498,562, leaving a deficit of $57,691.

The result was chiefly due, says the report, to the unsatisfactory manner in which coal tonnage was managed by the association under their arrangement of January 1st, 1878, and if the terms of the compact had been carried out firmly, the coal interest would now be on a sound and profitable basis.

Master Mechanics' Convention.

Cincinnati, May 13.—The twelfth annual convention of the American Railway Master Mechanics' Association began its session at the Grand Hotel to-day with N. E. Chapman, of Pittsburgh, in the chair. T. M. Dayton made the welcoming address, after which routine business was commenced and occupied the attention of the members nearly the entire day. The number of delegates is very large, representatives from all the prominent railroad points in the United States and Canada being present.

Mr. Hendricks! This is Treason.

[Evansville Courier.]

David Davis, of Illinois, is quietly gaining ground for the democratic nomination for president. Davis and Ewing would make a strong ticket.

WASHINGTON.

To-day's Proceedings in Both Houses of Congress.

Report of the Senate Finance Committee on the Subsidiary Silver Bill.

Failure of the Military Interference Bill to Pass over the Veto.

Lively Personal Debate in the House This Afternoon.

FOUR PERCENTS.

Washington, May 13.—Subscriptions to four percent refunding certificates since yesterday's report, $10,300,030.

GOLD AND SILVER COINAGE.

The senate finance committee authorized Mr. Bayard to propose as an amendment to the pending legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill that $20,000 be appropriated for the diplomatic and consular service, to be expended at discretion. The present purpose of the appropriation is to establish, if possible, through diplomatic agencies, a common international ratio of value between gold and silver coinage.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Washington, May 13.—The committee on finance to-day considered the house bill concerning subsidiary coins, and authorized Mr. Bayard to report it back to the senate with a recommendation for its passage with two amendments. One fixes the amount for which subsidiary silver coins shall hereafter be legal-tender in full payment of all dues, public and private, at $10 instead of $20, as proposed by the house of representatives, or $5 as provided by the existing law; the other amendment makes the provision of the fourth section of the bill applicable only to silver coins of the face value of twenty-five cents and under.

Mr. Bayard reported the bill favorably and asked for its consideration. It went over under objection.

Consideration was resumed of the legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill.

HOUSE.

Mr. Shelly made a personal explanation, asserting that the election in his district was peaceable and fair; that there had been no interference with any voters, and no disturbance or disorder on the day of the election, nor did any disturbance grow out of the election.

Mr. Russell followed with a personal explanation in answer to speeches recently made by Messrs. Kitchin and Davidson. He made a severe attack upon the former, who he said was in the possession of a seat and drawing a salary to which he was in no way entitled, and referred to him as a "gentleman so-called by the courtesy of the house."

This called forth a fierce speech from Kitchin, who referred to his colleague as one of those men from the south who had deserted their race and country and bone and flesh and joined the rag tag and bob tail of creation.

Mr. Kitchin was called to order by Mr. Stevenson and then continued in a moderate manner, characterizing, however, several of the charges made by Russell as totally false. He asked Russell if he had not been court-martialed and dismissed from the confederate service, to which Russell replied he had but that it was for whipping a conscription officer and that he had been restored to the confederate service by Jeff Davis.

This raised a laugh at Ketchen, and when he was about to reply he was cut off by a point of order, made by Gibson, that he was not making a personal explanation.

Mr. Davison followed with a personal explanation and denounced as false the statement made by Mr. Russell.

Mr. Knott then called up the veto message and demanded the previous question on the passage of the military interference bill over the president's veto.

The previous question was seconded and the house proceeded to vote.

The result of the vote was yeas 27, nays 97, there not being the two-thirds majority as required by the constitution the bill was rejected. Of the thirteen greenbackers, five voted in the affirmative and three (Brislow, Forsyth and Russell) did not vote.

The veto message was then referred to the judiciary committee.

Hugh McCulloch on the Silver Question.

[Boston Special to Cincinnati Gazette.]

Hon. Hugh McCulloch, ex-secretary of the treasury, in a lecture at Harvard College to-night, announced his conversion from monometalism to bimetalism, and said it was unpleasant to acknowledge the change publicly, but mature deliberation had convinced him that bimetalism was the true policy, and it was better for him to be right than consistent. He criticised severely the silver bill of 1878 as a great mistake, because it was hasty and did not secure European co-operation. He said all notes below $5 should be withdrawn within five years, and all $5 notes within three years. More coinage of gold dollars and quarter eagles should be discontinued, and silver substituted according to the ratio of European bimetalic countries, till this country is fully supplied. He advised imitation of the French polity. If Secretary Evarts should open negotiations with European countries, and conclude arrangements for a common bimetallic system is Europe and the United States, it would be the greatest achievement of his public career. He said the United States could not afford to make silver unlimited legal tender on a joint standard with gold without European co-operation. The United States is a silver-producing country, and gold would go abroad.

What They All Say.

[Toledo Commercial.]

The Fort Wayne SENTINEL claims a rapid increase in its circulation. The SENTINEL under its new management appears to be increasing in public favor and deservedly so. It is a first-class daily paper in every respect.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The circulation of the "Sentinel" is increasing so rapidly that it is necessary to go to press at a somewhat earlier hour than formerly in order to deliver the paper in all parts of the city at a proper hour. We will therefore regard it as a great favor if our advertising patrons will hand in their favors of every description at as early an hour as possible. In no case will display advertisements or changes be received after 10 a. m. for insertion the same day, and we should like to have them as much earlier than that as possible. It is needless to suggest that our advertising patrons are as much interested as ourselves in the prompt and faithful delivery of the "Sentinel."

"THE NEW SILVER BILL."

General Bill 9,399.—"An act to establish the shortest, quickest and most direct route from all points in the east to the Great Gold and Silver Mines of Colorado."

Be it enacted by the People of the United States, that they shall travel only by the route offering the least changes of cars, surest connections, with all the latest improvements for the comfort and convenience of the traveling public, between the East and the Great West.

The press and the people all unite in pronouncing the "Old and Reliable" Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad the only line which can offer these inducements.

They are the only line running through day coaches and Pullman Palace Sleepers between Toledo via Defiance, Fort Wayne, Peru, Logansport, Lafayette, Danville, Tolono, Decatur, Springfield, Jacksonville and Quincy to the Missouri River without change. The only line running day coaches between Indianapolis and the Missouri River via Danville Junction and Quincy without change, and a daily line of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, and the celebrated Horton Reclining Chair Cars between Chicago via Aurora, Mendota, Galesburg and Quincy to Kansas City without change, making sure and close connections for all points in Kansas, Nebraska and the Great Fields of Colorado. Our route to Leadville and other points in Colorado and the Great West are always as cheap as by any other line.

For maps, time tables and full information, address R. Tenbrocck, General Eastern Agent, 317 Broadway, New York; J. A. St. Reed, 59 Clark street, Chicago, Ill.; G. W. Boardman, Traveling Agent, Decatur, Ill.; or, T. Penfield, G. P. A., Hannibal, Mo.

The DAILY SENTINEL only 25 cents per month; containing full telegraphic and local news, market reports, interesting literary selections and miscellany, etc.

THE NEGRO EXODUS.

What the Relief Managers say of the Movement.

St. Louis, May 13.—It has been decided by the colored refugee relief board of St. Louis to send the Rev. John Tumer, colored, a member and officer of that board, to the east, to present to the people of that section all the facts so far known relating to the negro exodus, with a view to exciting their sympathy and co-operation in behalf of the refugees. The board, at its meeting last night, adopted a resolution stating that they have received information from their accredited agents, and also from public agents in Kansas, that refugees who have gone or been sent there have found work at fair wages. Gen. Conway denies being in favor of encouraging emigration from the south. He does not believe in urging negroes to leave their homes or labor, but he says those who have already left their places or plantations and are on the river banks awaiting transportation north, should not only be permitted to come, but should be brought up by every available means. He says that if the project of chartering steamers to bring them from their camps is carried out, the vessels will probably be obtained and outfitted on the Ohio River, where there are plenty of friends of the movement and abundance of funds to further the plan. He claims to be backed by a number of very wealthy philanthropists in the east, and says there will be no lack of money to carry out any scheme to aid the refugees which may be agreed upon. Nothing will be done towards bringing the emigrants up the river till the Quaker gentlemen who left home yesterday have reported the condition they find the negroes in at the points they intend visiting.

National Miller's Association.

Chicago, May 13.—The sixth annual convention of the National Miller's Association met at the Grand Pacific hotel to-day, six hundred of the nine hundred members being present, also A. Dow, president of the Chicago Board of Trade. Mayor Carter H. Harrison made the welcoming address. The president, George Bain, responded, and delivered the annual address. His principal recommendations are that the association be organized as a corporation on a legal basis for the purpose of carrying out suits regarding patents; that a patent attorney be appointed to look to the interests of the association as against the encroachments of patentees; that the success attending their efforts against the impositions of the Cochrane patent should encourage them to wage warfare against the Denchfield patentees, and that a better system of grading and inspection be adopted.

The Coal Interests.

New York, May 13.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company the annual report was read. It shows that for the year ending December 31st, 1878, there was a profit in the business of the company proper of $440,971. and the loss on the leased lines of $498,562, leaving a deficit of $57,591.

The result was chiefly due, says the report, to the unsatisfactory manner in which coal tonnage was managed by the association under their arrangement of January 1st, 1878, and if the terms of the compact had been carried out firmly, the coal interest would now be on a sound and profitable basis.

Master Mechanics' Convention.

Cincinnati, May 13.—The twelfth annual convention of the American Railway Master Mechanics' Association began its session at the Grand Hotel to-day with N. E. Chapman, of Pittsburgh, in the chair. T. M. Dayton made the welcoming address, after which routine business was commenced and occupied the attention of the members nearly the entire day. The number of delegates is very large, representatives from all the prominent railroad points in the United States and Canada being present.

Mr. Hendricks! This is Treason.

[Evansville Courier.]

David Davis, of Illinois, is quietly gaining ground for the democratic nomination for president. Davis and Ewing would make a strong ticket.

Failure of the Military Interference Bill to Pass over the Veto.

Lively Personal Debate in the House This Afternoon.

FOUR PERCENTS.

Washington, May 13.—Subscriptions to four percent refunding certificates since yesterday's report, $10,300,030.

GOLD AND SILVER COINAGE.

The senate finance committee authorized Mr. Bayard to propose as an amendment to the pending legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill that $20,000 be appropriated for the diplomatic and consular service, to be expended at discretion. The present purpose of the appropriation is to establish, if possible, through diplomatic agencies, a common international ratio of value between gold and silver coinage.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Washington, May 13.—The committee on finance to-day considered the house bill concerning subsidiary coins, and authorized Mr. Bayard to report it back to the senate with a recommendation for its passage with two amendments. One fixes the amount for which subsidiary silver coins shall hereafter be legal-t nder in full payment of all dues, public and private, at $10 instead of $20, as proposed by the house of representatives, or $5 as provided by the existing law; the other amendment makes the provision of the fourth section of the bill applicable only to silver coins of the face value of twenty-five cents and under.

Mr. Bayard reported the bill favorably and asked for its consideration. It went over under objection.

Consideration was resumed of the legislative executive and judicial appropriation bill.

HOUSE.

Mr. Shelly made a personal explanation, asserting that the election in his district was peaceable and fair; that there had been no interference with any voters, and no disturbance or disorder on the day of the election, nor did any disturbance grow out of the election.

Mr. Russell followed with a personal explanation in answer to speeches recently made by Messrs. Kitchin and Davidson. He made a severe attack upon the former, who he said was in the possession of a seat and drawing a salary to which he was in no way entitled, and referred to him as a "gentleman so-called by the courtesy of the house."

This called forth a fierce speech from Kitchin, who referred to his colleague as one of those men from the south who had deserted their race and country and bone and flesh and joined the rag tag and bob tail of creation.

Mr. Kitchin was called to order by Mr. Stevenson and then continued in a moderate manner, characterizing, however, several of the charges made by Russell as totally false. He asked Russell if he had not been court-martialed and dismissed from the confederate service, to which Russell replied he had but that it was for whipping a conscription officer and that he had been restored to the confederate service by Jeff Davis.

This raised a laugh at Ketchen, and when he was about to reply he was cut off by a point of order, made by Gibson, that he was not making a personal explanation.

Mr. Davison followed with a personal explanation and denounced as false the statement made by Mr. Russell.

Mr. Knott then called up the veto message and demanded the previous question on the passage of the military interference bill over the president's veto.

The previous question was seconded and the house proceeded to vote.

The result of the vote was yeas 27, nays 97, there not being the two-thirds majority as required by the constitution the bill was rejected. Of the thirteen greenbackers, five voted in the affirmative and three (Brislow, Forsyth and Russell) did not vote.

The veto message was then referred to the judiciary committee.

Hugh McCulloch on the Silver Question.

[Boston Special to Cincinnati Gazette.]

Hon. Hugh McCulloch, ex-secretary of the treasury, in a lecture at Harvard College to-night, announced his conversion from monometalism to bimetalism, and said it was unpleasant to acknowledge the change publicly, but mature deliberation had convinced him that bimetaliism was the true policy, and it was better for him to be right than consistent. He criticised severely the silver bill of 1878 as a great mistake, because it was hasty and did not secure European co-operation. He said all notes below $5 should be withdrawn within five years, and all $5 notes within three years. More coinage of gold dollars and quarter eagles should be discontinued, and silver substituted according to the ratio of European bimetalic countries, till this country is fully supplied. He advised imitation of the French polity. If Secretary Evarts should open negotiations with European countries, and conclude arrangements for a common bimetallic system is Europe and the United States, it would be the greatest achievement of his public career. He said the United States could not afford to make silver unlimited legal tender on a joint standard with gold without European co-operation. The United States is a silver-producing country, and gold would go abroad.

[Toledo Commercial.]

The Fort Wayne SENTINEL claims a rapid increase in its circulation. The SENTINEL under its new management appears to be increasing in public favor and deservedly so. It is a first-class daily paper in every respect.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The circulation of the "Sentinel" is increasing so rapidly, that it is necessary to go to press at a somewhat earlier hour than formerly in order to deliver the paper in all parts of the city at a proper hour. We will therefore regard it as a great favor if our advertising patrons will hand in their favors of every description at as early an hour as possible. In no case will display advertisements or changes be received after 10 a. m. for insertion the same day, and we should like to have them as much earlier than that as possible. It is needless to suggest that our advertising patrons are as much interested as ourselves in the prompt and faithful delivery of the "Sentinel."

"THE NEW SILVER BILL."

General Bill 9,399.—"An act to establish the shortest, quickest and most direct route from all points in the east to the Great Gold and Silver Mines of Colorado."

Be it enacted by the People of the United States, that they shall travel only by the route offering the least changes of cars, surest connections, with all the latest improvements for the comfort and convenience of the traveling public, between the East and the Great West.

The press and the people all unite in pronouncing the "Old and Reliable" Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad the only line which can offer these inducements.

They are the only line running through day coaches and Pullman Palace Sleepers between Toledo (O.) via Defiance, Fort Wayne, Peru, Logansport, Lafayette, Danville, Tolono, Decatur, Springfield, Jacksonville and Quincy to the Missouri River without change. The only line running day coaches between Indianapolis and the Missouri River via Danville Junction and Quincy without change, and a daily line line of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars, and the celebrated Horton Reclining Chair Cars between Chicago via Aurora, Mendota, Galesburg and Quincy to Kansas City without change, making sure and close connections for all points in Kansas, Nebraska and the Gold Fields of Colorado. Our rates to Leadville and other points in Colorado and the Great West are always as cheap as by any other line.

Congressional Summary.

Monday, May 12.—SENATE.—Consideration was resumed of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and Mr. Windom addressed the senate, followed by Mr. Coke. HOUSE.—Mr. Cox called attention to a petition presented Saturday to the effect that a longer continued session was fraught with danger to the country, and characterized it as an insult to congress. The petition was finally excluded from the record. The president's message vetoing the anti-military interference bill was received and read. It is printed in full elsewhere in this paper. A resolution for the final adjournment of this session on the —— day of May, was referred to the committee on ways and means. A motion to suspend the rules and pass the army appropriation bill was lost by a strict party vote. Of the greenbackers, De La Matyr, Ford, Gillette, Jones, Howe, Murch, Stevenson and Weaver voted yea, and Ladd nay. A bill to reduce the president's salary to not over $26,000, after the expiration of the present term, was introduced.

THE SENTINEL yesterday issued two editions, the latter of which contained President HAYES's veto message in full. Most of our subscribers were served with the second edition. It is our purpose to issue two editions whenever we receive important news by telegraph or otherwise too late for the first edition.

OUR esteemed but delightfully ignorant morning contemporary refers President HAYES'S veto message to (which the SENTINEL printed in full yesterday afternoon) as a veto of the army appropriation bill. This is done not only in a telegraphic head line, but also in the editorial columns. It becomes the SENTINEL'S unpleasant duty to inform its esteemed morning contemporary that the "amiably stubborn" Mr. HAYES (who, by the way, was never elected president, but holds his seat by virtue of an infamous conspiracy) vetoed the army appriation bill on the 29th of April. Congress then went to work and passed a bill framed especially to meet the objections urged in the de facto president's former message. The bill was entitled "An act to prohibit military interference at elections," and had nothing whatever to do with appropriations for the army or for any other purpose. This is the act that was vetoed yesterday. It is important that an educator of the public should get these matters right. The SENTINEL was once before greatly embarrassed for the reputation of Fort Wayne journalism by the solemn announcement in the Gazette that Speaker RANDALL would appoint Senator VOORHEES "at the tail end of the library committee," but really this last deliverance is too much. What can be done for our esteemed but intensely ignorant contemporary?

THE LAST VETO.

The bill which the de facto president yesterday vetoed was as follows:

Be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful to bring to or occupy at any place where a general or special election is held in a state, any part of the army or navy of the United States, unless such force be necessary to repel armed enemies of the United States, or to enforce section four of article four of the constitution of the United States, and laws made in pursuance thereof, on application of the legislature or executive of the state where such force is to be used, and so much of all laws as is inconsistent herewith, is hereby repealed.

The above measure does not seem to contain any provision dangerous to the peace, happiness or well being of the people of the United States. It was framed with a view to meeting the objections urged in the president's message vetoing the army appropriation bill. When it was passed by congress Mr. HAYES expressed the opinion that no objection could be brought against the bill and that it was his duty to sign it. The stalwarts thought otherwise, however, and Mr. HAYES was induced to yield to them.

It is evident that Mr. HAYES is now completely under stalwart influence, and that he will vetoe every bill passed by congress which aims to military interference with elections or prevent the extra-constitutional federal supervision of the affairs of the states provided for in the obnoxious statutes which the democrats desire to repeal. There is therefore nothing to be gained by wasting much more time on these subjects.

The best thing for congress to do is to present the several bills providing for the contemplated reform to the president for his signature, this to be done as quickly and with as little debate as possible. If these bills are vetoed, then congress must pass the appropriation bills, or at least a joint resolution continuing the current appropriations until next December, and adjourn.

The issue will then be fairly before the people: "Do you want troops at the polls?" "Do you want the jurors test oath continued?" "Do you want your elections managed for you by federal marshals and supervisors?" In other words: "Are you for free elections or not?" The result cannot be doubtful. This question, once fairly presented to the people, divested of sophistry and evasion and technical quibbles will be answered in such an emphatic manner that for another century at least no American statesman will dare to advocate the use of troops at the polls. The old Anglo-Saxon spirit has not died out in America, as will presently be demonstrated.

The question is one of vast importance. The vital fundamental principles which rest at the base of our whole system of government are involved. There is no compromise probable. We are at the forks of two roads; this way lies liberty; that way lies despotism. The issue is with the people.

While there can be no doubt that the right is wholly with the democrats in this battle, it must be confessed that our leaders have shown a lack of generalship in handling the subject. The changes desired should have been embodied in separate measures, as advised by Senator BAYARD, rather than incorporated in the appropriation bills as Senator THURMAN insisted should be done. If these measures had been passed and vetoed, then they should have been tacked on to the appropriation bills only if it was the settled and determined purpose of congress to refuse the appropriations unless these provisions became incorporated in the statutes. We think the democratic party of the country is and has been against a stoppage of the supplies, first because of the serious results of such action to the country at large, and second because the party is and has been well satisfied to carry the issue, squarely made up, before the people of the union, perfectly confident what the verdict will be.

The Okolona Howler.

[Letter in Columbus Democrat.]

Kenton, O., May 3.—People who wonder why the Okolona Southern States has so much circulation in the north, and why it is so extensively copied from by the republican papers, will probably be enlightened by a perusal of the following letter, which explains itself:

Office of the Southern States, Okolona, Miss., April 30th, 1879.—Gen. J. S. Robinson: The papers have been sent agreeable to instructions.

The points are made red-hot this week, and all of them will hit hard. It is advisable to have them as extensively copied as possible. We will mark them for our northern exchanges.

Congressman Frye regards it a great success.

We will give them h—ll according to the extent of the circulation. The larger the subscription list the louder the thunder.

Yours, with respect,
WILL H. KERNAN.

George C. Harding was taken to the Sanitarium, a private insane asylum at College Hill, back of Cincinnati, yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, his removal from the jail being kept a secret until late in the day. His attorneys do not want him pronounced insane, but desire him to be kept quiet.

[New Albany Ledger-Standard.]

The Fort Wayne DAILY SENTINEL has made a great mistake in putting the price of subscription at one cent per number. That is too low for so good a paper.

As a valuable remedy for dyspepsia, sick headache, torpid liver, and such like diseases we can recommend Dr. Bull's Baltimore Pills. Price only 25 cents.

A Pleasant Duty.

It is always a pleasure to recommend a good article, especially one that so admirably sustains its reputation as does DR. WASHINGTON.

The President Vetoes the Anti-Military Interference Bill.

[The following is the full text of President HAYES's message vetoing the bill prohibiting military interference at elections. The message in full appeared only in our second edition of yesterday, and a few of our subscribers received the first edition which contained only the opening portions of the message.—ED. SENTINEL.]

To the House of Representatives:

After a careful consideration of the bill entitled "an act to prohibit military interence at elections," I return it to your house of representatives in which it originated with the following objections to its approval:

In the communication sent to the house on the 29th ult., returning without my approval the bill entitled "An act making appropriations for the support of the army for the support of the army for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1880, and for other purposes," I endeavored to show by quotations from the statutes now in force and by a brief statement of facts in regard to recent elections in several states, that no additional legislation was necessary to prevent interference with elections by the military and naval forces of the United States. The fact was presented in that communication that at the time of the passage of the act of June 18th, 1878, in relation to the employment of the army as a posse comitatus or otherwise, it was maintained by its friends that it would establish the vital and fundamental principle which would secure to the people protection against a standing army. The fact was also referred to that since the passage of this act congressional, state and municipal elections have been held throughout the union and that in no instance has complaint been made of the presence of United States soldiers at the polls. Holding as I do the opinion that any military interference whatever at the polls is contrary to the spirit of our constitution, and would tend to destroy the freedom of elections, and sincerely desiring to concur with congress in all of its measures, it is with great regret that I am forced to the conclusion that the bill before me is not only unnecessary to prevent such interference, but is a dangerous departure from long settled and important constitutional principles. The true rule as to the employment of military force at elections is not doubtful. No intimidation or coercion should be allowed to control or influence citizens in the exercise of their right to vote, whether it appears in the shape of a combination of evil disposed persons or of armed bodies of militia of a state or of the military force of the United States. The elections should be free from all forcible interference, and, as far as practicable, from all apprehensions of such interference. No soldiers, either of the union or of the state militia, should be present at the polls to take the place or to perform the duties of the ordinary civil police force. There has been and will be no violation of this rule under the orders from me during this administration, but there should be no denial of the right of the national government to employ its military force on any day, and at any time, in case such employment is necessary to enforce the constitution and laws of the United States. The bill before me is as follows:

It will be observed that this bill exempts from the general prohibition against the employment of the military forces at the polls, ten specified cases. These exceptions recognize and concede the soundness of the principle that military force may properly and constitutionally be used at places of elections where such use is necessary under the constitution and laws. But the excepted cases leave the prohibition so extensive and far-reaching that its adoption will seriously impair the efficiency of the executive department of the government. The first act expressly authorizing the use of military power to execute the laws was passed almost as early as the organization of the government under the constitution, and was approved by President Washington, May 2d, 1792. It is as follows:

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted that when ever the laws of the United States shall be opposed, or the execution thereof obstructed in any state by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings or by the power vested in marshals by this act, the same being certified to the president by an associate justice or a district judge, it shall be lawful for the president to call forth the military of such state to suppress such combinations and to cause the laws to be duly executed, and if the militia of a state where such combinations may happen shall refuse or be insufficient to suppress the same it, it shall be lawful for the president, if the legislature be not in session, to employ such numbers of the militia of any other state, or states, most convenient thereto as may be necessary, and the use of militia so to be called forth may be continued, if necessary, until the expiration of thirty days after the commencement of the ensuing session."

In 1795 this provsion was substantially re-enacted in a law which repealed the act of 1792.

In 1807 the following act became the law by the approval of President Jefferson:

"That in all cases of insurrection or obstruction to the laws, either of the United States or of any individual state or territory, when it is lawful for the president of the United States to call forth the militia for the purpose of suppressing such insurrection or of causing the laws to be duly executed, it shall be lawful for him to employ for the same purpose such part of the land or naval forces of the United States as shall be judged necessary, having first observed all the requisites of the law in that respect."

By this act it will be seen that the scope of the law of 1795 was extended so as to authorize the national government to use not only the militia but the army and navy of the United States in causing the laws to be duly executed. The important provision of the acts of 1702, 1795 and 1807, modified in its terms, from time to time, to adopt it to existing emergency, remained in force until, by an act approved by President Lincoln, July 29th, 1861, it was re-enacted substantially in the same language in which it is now found in the revised statues, viz sec. 5,298:

"Whenever, by reason of unlawful obstruction, combinations or assemblages of persons in rebellion against the authority of the government of the United States, it shall become impracticable, in the judgment of the president, to enforce, by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, the laws of the United States within any state or territory, it shall be lawful for the president to call forth the militia of any or all states, and to employ such parts of the land and naval forces of the United States as he may deem necessary to enforce the faithful execution of the laws of the United States or to suppress such rebellion in whatever state or territory thereof the laws of the United States may be forcibly opposed or the execution thereof forcibly obstructed."

This ancient and fundamental law has been in force from the foundation of the government. It is now proposed to abrogate it on certain days and at certain places. In my judgment no fact has been produced which tends to show that it ought to be repealed or suspended for a single hour at any place in any of the states or territories of the union. The teachings of experience in the course of history are and favor of sustaining its efficiency unimpaired. On every occasion when the supremacy of the constitution has been resisted and the perpetuity of our institutions imperilled, the principles of the statute enacted by the fathers have enabled the government of the United States to maintain its authority, and to preserve the integrity of the nation. At the most critical period of our history my predecessors in the executive office have relied on this great principle. It was on this principle that President Washington suppressed the whisky rebellion in Pennsylvania, in 1794. In 1806, on the same principle, President Jefferson broke up the Burr conspiracy by issuing orders for the employment of such force, either of the regulars or of the militia, and by such proceedings of the civil authorities as might enable them to suppress effectually the further progress of the enterprise. It was under the same authority that President Jackson crushed the nullification in South Carolina and that President Lincoln issued his call for trops to save the union in 1861. There are numerous other occasions, of less significance, under probably every administration and certainly under the present this power has been usefully exercised to enforce the laws without objection by any party in the country and almost without attracting public attention. The great elementary constitutional principle which was the foundation of the original statute of 1792, and which has been its essence in the various forms it has assumed since its first adoption, is that the government of the United States possesses under the constitution in full measure the power of self protection itsown agencies altogether independent of state authority, and if need be against the hostility of state governments, it should remain unimpaired as it has been from the origin of the government. It should be regarded as hardly less valuable or less sacred than a provision of the constitution itself. There are many other important statutes containing provisions that are liable to be suspended or annulled at times and places of holding elections if the bill before me should become a law. I do not undertake to furnish a list of them. Many of them—perhaps most of them—have been set forth in debates on the measure. They relate to extradition, to crimes against election laws, to quarantine regulations, to the neutrality of Indian reservations, to civil rights of citizens, and to other subjects. In regard to them all it may be safely said that the meaning and effect of this bill is to take from the general government an important part of its power to enforce the laws.

Another grave objection to the bill is its discrimination in favor of the state and against the national authority. The presence or employment of the army or navy of the United States is lawful under the terms of this bill at the place where an election is being held in a state to uphold the authority of a state government then and there in need of such military intervention, but unlawful to uphold the authority of the government of the United States then and there in need of such military intervention. Under this bill the presence and employment of the army or navy of the United States would be lawful and might be necessary to maintain the conduct of state elections against domestic violence that would overthrow it but would be unlawful to maintain the conduct of a national election against the same local violence that would overthrow it. This discrimination has never been attempted in any previous legislation by congress, and is not compatible with sound principles. In the early legislation of 1792 and of 1795, by which the militia of the states was the only military power resorted to for the execution of constitutional powers in support of state or national authority, both functions of the government were put upon the same footing. By the act of 1807 the employment of the army and navy was authorized for the performance of both constitutional duties in the same terms. In all later statutes on the same subject some measure of authority to the government has been accorded for the performance of its duties. No precedent has been found in any previous legislation, and no sufficient reasons have been given for the discrimination in favor of the state and against the national authority which this bill contains. Under the sweeping terms of this bill the national government is effectually shut out from the exercise of the right and from the discharge of an imperative duty to use the whole executive power whenever and wherever requiried for the enforcement of its laws. At places and times where and when its elections are held, the employment of its organized armed forces for any such purpose would be an offense against the law unless called for by, and therefore upon permission of the authorities of the State in which the occasion arises. What is this but the substitution of the discretion of the state governments for the discretion of the government of the United States as to the performance of its own duties? In my judgment this is an abandoment of its obligations by the national government, a subordination of the national authority and an intrusion of state supervision over national duties which amounts in spirit and tendency to state supremacy. Although I believe that the existing statutes are abundantly adequate to completely prevent military interference with the elections in the sense in which the phrase is used in the title of this bill, and is employed by the people of this country, I shall find no difficulty in concurring in any additional legislation limited to that object which does not interfere with the indispensible exercise of the powers of the government and the constitution and laws.

Signed,
RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

AN AMERICAN ROMANCE.

A Curious Case of Concealed Identity—A Judge On the Bench Under an Assumed Name.

[Cor. New Albany Ledger-Standard.]

Presely O'Bannon disappeared from Leavenworth, Ind., seven years ago, and was supposed by all to have been murdered. He was about thirty-five years of age, possessed some wealth, and was a successful lawyer in this county. He was a fine looking man, and lived in peaceful domestic relations with his wife, by whom he had two children. The wife was many years his junior, but looked up to him and loved him to idolatry.

The "skeleton of the closet" with this family was that the husband, though not a habitual drunkard, would at times indulge in prolonged spress; it was during one of these that he started to attend a Masonic lodge in this town, distant five miles from home.

He only remembers now that he strolled around town till after dark, and that when some steamer landed at the wharf he went aboard of her.

When he came to himself weeks afterward, he was sawing wood for a farmer in southern Illinois. He made up his mind never to return home; his family he argued would be better off without him. His wife could procure a divorce, marry again and be happier than she had ever been with him. He settled finally at Vienna, Ill., became sober and industrious, amassed wealth and rose finally to the position of judge of the circuit court.

He brought a woman with him to Vienna who was introduced to his friends as his wife. He had picked her up in his travels, and she was willing to accept the position he offered her, with between them that he might abandon her at any moment. So, as O'Bannon in his new life had taken the name of Brown, the woman entered Vienna society as Mrs. Judge Brown.

It was a very strange fact that the man leaving as publicly as he did, was never traced out of the town of Leavenworth.

The horse he rode there was found tied in an out-of-the-way shed several days afterward, and as it was supposed he left home with money in his pocket to the amount of several hundred dollars, his friends concluded that he had met with foul play.

The nearly crazed wife spent a small fortune in trying to discover either her husband or the means of his death; but she spent in vain, and filled at last the position of seamstress in a lawyer's family at Corydon, Ind. She was described as being a "pretty, girlish-looking woman." He saw a portrait of her, and thought she had the saddest face I ever saw.

Well, when his friends believed at last that he was dead, they remembered that he had an insurance on his life for $5,000; so Lawyer Tracewell, an able attorney at this place, was employed to get the money for her, and was promised the half of it if he succeeded.

He was successful, and on the 13th of this month she was to receive the money. A few weeks before this, O'Bannon, as Judge Brown, fined one Nim Hudson, of Vienna, for some trifling act the sum of $100. Hudson had seen O'Bannon in the army years before, and had thought for a long time that he and Judge Brown were one and the same, but said nothing about it.

So now, for the sake of revenge, he wrote to our postmaster here, telling him his suspicions. The insurance company then offered Dr. Hawn, the postmaster, $600 to find O'Bannon.

The doctor accepted and started for Vienna, inquired for the judge, and recognized him immediately as the long-lost lawyer. The judge was surprised to see his old friend so suddenly, and to know that his wife was yet unmarried. "My God! Helena not married yet?" he exclaimed. "No," answered Hawn, "and she is a finer-looking woman than she was the day you left her."

Then the doctor told him about the insurance, and the judge seemed to be annoyed that he had come so near swindling the company. He proposed to go back immediately and "straighten things;" told Hawn that he always kept his business affairs arranged so that he could leave with two hours' notice.

So the next night O'Bannon arrived at his father's home, a few miles below here. The old man was struck speechless for several hours at the sight of his son, whom he had mourned for dead so long. Mr. O'Bannon's two boys, living with his father, were overjoyed to see him.

Mrs. O'Bannon was sent for. When she heard the story, she was willing to forget and forgive all but the "Mrs. Judge Brown" part, and refused to come.

Mrs. O'Bannon has applied for a divorce. Lawyer O'Bannon is still a handsome man; a gentleman that one would be apt to take a second look at. He possesses a certain fascinating power in conversation which compels one to listen against one's will, and to believe against one's convictions, and so, notwithstanding the man's past, the whole town and country seems rejoiced over Mr. O'Bannon's return.

Congressional Summary.

Monday, May 12.—SENATE.—Consideration was resumed of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, and Mr. Windom addressed the senate, followed by Mr. Coke. HOUSE.—Mr. Cox called attention to a petition presented Saturday to the effect that a longer continued session was fraught with danger to the country, and characterized it as an insult to congress. The petition was finally excluded from the record. The president's message vetoing the anti-military interference bill was received and read. It is printed in full elsewhere in this paper. A resolution for the final adjournment of this session on the —— day of May, was referred to the committee on ways and means. A motion to suspend the rules and pass the army appropriation bill was lost by a strict party vote. Of the greenbackers, De La Matyr, Ford, Gillette, Jones, Howe, Murch, Stevenson and Weaver voted yea, and Ludd nay. A bill to reduce the president's salary to not over $26,000, after the expiration of the present term, was introduced.

THE SENTINEL yesterday issued two editions, the latter of which contained President HAYES's veto message in full. Most of our subscribers were served with the second edition. It is our purpose to issue two editions whenever we receive important news by telegraph or otherwise too late for the first edition.

OUR esteemed but delightfully ignorant morning contemporary refers President HAYES's veto message to (which the SENTINEL printed in full yesterday afternoon) as a veto of the army appropriation bill. This is done not only in a telegraphic head line, but also in the editorial columns. It becomes the SENTINEL'S unpleasant duty to inform its esteemed morning contemporary that the "amiably stubborn" Mr. HAYES (who, by the way, was never elected president, but holds his seat by virtue of an infamous conspiracy) vetoed the army appriation bill on the 29th of April. Congress then went to work and passed a bill framed especially to meet the objections urged in the de facto president's former message. The bill was entitled "An act to prohibit military interference at elections," and had nothing whatever to do with appropriations for the army or for any other purpose. This is the act that was vetoed yesterday. It is important that an educator of the public should get these matters right. The SENTINEL was once before greatly embarrassed for the reputation of Fort Wayne journalism by the solemn announcement in the Gazette that Speaker RANDALL would appoint Senator VOORHEES "at the tail end of the library committee," but really this last deliverance is too much. What can be done for our esteemed but intensely ignorant contemporary?

THE LAST VETO.

The bill which the de facto president yesterday vetoed was as follows:

Be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful to bring to or occupy at any place where a general or special election is held in a state, any part of the army or navy of the United States, unless such force be necessary to repel armed enemies of the United States, or to enforce section four of article four of the constitution of the United States, and laws made in pursuance thereof, on application of the legislature or executive of the state where such force is to be used, and so much of all laws as is inconsistent herewith, is hereby repealed.

The above measure does not seem to contain any provision dangerous to the peace, happiness or well being of the people of the United States. It was framed with a view to meeting the objections urged in the president's message vetoing the army appropriation bill. When it was passed by congress Mr. HAYES expressed the opinion that no objection could be brought against the bill, and that it was his duty to sign it. The stalwarts thought otherwise, however, and Mr. HAYES was induced to yield to them.

It is evident that Mr. HAYES is now completely under stalwart influence, and that he will vetoe every bill passed by congress which aims to military interference with elections or prevent the extra-constitutional federal supervision of the affairs of the states provided for in the obnoxious statutes which the democrats desire to repeal. There is therefore nothing to be gained by wasting much more time on these subjects.

The best thing for congress to do is to present the several bills providing for the contemplated reform to the president for his signature, this to be done as quickly and with as little debate as possible. If these bills are vetoed, then congress must pass the appropriation bills, or at least a joint resolution continuing the current appropriations until next December, and adjourn.

The issue will then be fairly before the people: "Do you want troops at the polls?" "Do you want the jurors test oath continued?" "Do you want your elections managed for you by federal marshals and supervisors?" In other words: "Are you for free elections or not?" The result cannot be doubtful. This question, once fairly presented to the people, divested of sophistry and evasion and technical quibbles will be answered in such an emphatic manner that for another century at least no American statesman will dare to advocate the use of troops at the polls. The old Anglo-Saxon spirit has not died out in America, as will presently be demonstrated.

The question is one of vast importance. The vital fundamental principles which rest at the base of our whole system of government are involved. There is no compromise probable. We are at the forks of two roads; this way lies liberty; that way lies despotism. The issue is with the people.

While there can be no doubt that the right is wholly with the democrats in this battle, it must be confessed that our leaders have shown a lack of generalship in handling the subject. The changes desired should have been embodied in separate measures, as advised by Senator BAYARD, rather than incorporated in the appropriation bills as Senator THURMAN insisted should be done. If these measures had been passed and vetoed, then they should have been tacked on to the appropriation bills only if it was the settled and determined purpose of congress to refuse the appropriations unless these provisions became incorparated in the statutes. We think the democratic party of the country is and has been against a stoppage of the supplies, first because of the serious results of such action to the country at large, and second because the party is and has been well satisfied to carry the issue, squarely made up, before the people of the union, perfectly confident what the verdict will be.

[Letter in Columbus Democrat.].

Kenton, O., May 3.—People who wonder why the Okolona Southern States has so much circulation in the north, and why it is so extensively copied from by the republican papers, will probably be enlightened by a perusal of the following letter, which explains itself:

Office of the Southern States, Okolona, Miss., April 30th, 1879.—Gen. J. S. Robinson: The papers have been sent agreeable to instructions.

The points are made red-hot this week, and all of them will hit hard. It is advisable to have them as extensively copied as possible. We will mark them for our northern exchanges.

Congressman Frye regards it a great success.

We will give them h—ll according to the extent of the circulation. The larger the subscription list the louder the thunder.

WASHINGTON.

The President Vetoes the Anti-Military Interference Bill.

[The following is the full text of President HAYES's message vetoing the bill prohibiting military interference at elections. The message in full appeared only in our second edition of yesterday, and a few of our subscribers received the first edition which contained only the opening portions of the message.—ED. SENTINEL.]

To the House of Representatives:

After a careful consideration of the bill entitled "an act to prohibit military interence at elections," I return it to your house of representatives in which it originated with the following objections to its approval:

In the communication sent to the house on the 29th ult., returning without my approval the bill entitled "An act making appropriations for the support of the army for the support of the army for the fiscal year ending June 30th, 1880, and for other purposes," I endeavored to show by quotations from the statutes now in force and by a brief statement of facts in regard to recent elections in several states, that no additional legislation was necessary to prevent interference with elections by the military and naval forces of the United States. The fact was presented in that communication that at the time of the passage of the act of June 18th, 1878, in relation to the employment of the army as a posse commitatus or otherwise, it was maintained by its friends that it would establish the vital and fundamental principle which would secure to the people protection against a standing army. The fact was also referred to that since the passage of this act congressional, state and municipal elections have been held throughout the union and that in no instance has complaint been made of the presence of United States soldiers at the polls. Holding as I do the opinion that any military interference whatever at the polls is contrary to the spirit of our constitution, and would tend to destroy the freedom of elections, and sincerely desiring to concur with congress in all of its measures, it is with great regret that I am forced to the conclusion that the bill before me is not only unnecessary to prevent such interference, but is a dangerous departure from long settled and important constitutional principles. The true rule as to the employment of military force at elections is not doubtful. No intimidation or coercion should be allowed to control or influence citizens in the exercise of their right to vote, whether it appears in the shape of a combination of evil disposed persons or of armed bodies of militia of a state or of the military force of the United States. The elections should be free from all forcible interference, and, as far as practicable, from all apprehensions of such interference. No soldiers, either of the union or of the state militia, should be present at the polls to take the place or to perform the duties of the ordinary civil police force. There has been and will be no violation of this rule under the orders from me during this administration, but there should be no denial of the right of the national government to employ its military force on any day, and at any time, in case such employment is necessary to enforce the constitution and laws of the United States. The bill before me is as follows:

It will be observed that this bill exempts from the general prohibition against the employment of the military forces at the polls, ten specified cases. These exceptions recognize and concede the soundness of the principle that military force may properly and constitutionally be used at places of elections where such use is necessary under the constitution and laws. But the excepted cases leave the prohibition so extensive and far-reaching that its adoption will seriously impair the efficiency of the executive department of the government. The first act expressly authorizing the use of military power to execute the laws was passed almost as early as the organization of the government under the constitution, and was approved by President Washington, May 2d, 1792. It is as follows:

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted that when ever the laws of the United States shall be opposed, or the execution thereof obstructed in any state by combinations too powerful to be suppressed by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings or by the power vested in marshals by this act, the same being certified to the president by an associate justice or a district judge, it shall be lawful for the president to call forth the military of such state to suppress such combinations and to cause the laws to be duly executed, and if the militia of a state where such combinations may happen shall refuse or be insufficient to suppress the same it, it shall be lawful for the president, if the legislature be not in session, to employ such numbers of the militia of any other state, or states, most convenient thereto as may be necessary, and the use of militia so to be called forth may be continued, if necessary, until the expiration of thirty days after the commencement of the ensuing session."

In 1807 the following act became the law by the approval of President Jefferson:

"That in all cases of insurrection or obstruction to the laws, either of the United States or of any individual state or terrtiory, when it is lawful for the president of the United States to call forth the militia for the purpose of suppressing such insurrection or of causing the laws to be duly executed, it shall be lawful for him to employ for the same purpose such part of the land or naval forces of the United States as shall be judged necessary, having first observed all the requisites of the law in that respect."

By the act it will be seen that the scope of the law of 1795 was extended so as to authorize the national government to use not only the militia but the army and navy of the United States in causing the laws to be duly executed. The important provision of the acts of 1702, 1795 and 1807, modified in its terms, from time to time, to adopt it to existing emergency, remained in force until, by an act approved by President Lincoln, July 29th, 1861, it was re-enacted substantially in the same language in which it is now found in the revised statues, viz sec. 5,298:

"Whenever, by reason of unlawful obstruction, combinations or assemblages of persons in rebellion against the authority of the government of the United States, it shall become impracticable, in the judgment of the president, to enforce, by the ordinary course of judicial proceedings, the laws of the United States within any state or territory, it shall be lawful for the president to call forth the militia of any or all states, and to employ such parts of the land and naval forces of the United States as he may deem necessary to enforce the faithful execution of the laws of the United States or to suppress such rebellion in whatever state or territory thereof the laws of the United States may be forcibly opposed or the execution thereof forcibly obstructed."

This ancient and fundamental law has been in force from the foundation of the government. It is now proposed to abrogate it on certain days and at certain places. In my judgment no fact has been produced which tends to show that it ought to be repealed or suspended for a single hour at any place in any of the states or territories of the union. The teachings of experience in the course of history are and favor of sustaining its efficiency unimpaired. On every occasion when the supremacy of the constitution has been resisted and the perpetuity of our institutions imperilled, the principles of the statute enacted by the fathers have enabled the government of the United States to maintain its authority, and to preserve the integrity of the nation. At the most critical period of our history my predecessors in the executive office have relied on this great principle. It was on this principle that President Washington suppressed the whisky rebellion in Pennsylvania, in 1794. In 1806, on the same principle, President Jefferson broke up the Burr conspirrcy by issuing orders for the employment of such force, either of the regulars or of the militia, and by such proceedings of the civil authorities as might enable them to suppress effectually the further progress of the enterprise. It was under the same authority that President Jackson crushed the nullification in South Carolina and that President Lincoln issued his call for trops to save the union in 1861. There are numerous other occasions, of less significance, under probably every administration and certainly under the present this power has been usefully exercised to enforce the laws without objection by any party in the country and almost without attracting public attention. The great elementary constitutional principle which was the foundation of the original statute of 1792, and which has been its essence in the various forms it has assumed since its first adoption, is that the government of the United States possesses under the constitution in full measure the power of self protection its own agencies altogether independent of state authority, and if need be against the hostility of state governments, it should remain unimpaired as it has been from the origin of the government. It should be regarded as hardly less valuable or less sacred than a provision of the constitution itself. There are many other important statutes containing provisions that are liable to be suspended or annulled at times and places of holding elections if the bill before me should become a law. I do not undertake to furnish a list of them. Many of them—perhaps most of them—have been set forth in debates on the measure. They relate to extradition, to crimes against election laws, to quarantine regulations, to the neutrality of Indian reservations, to civil rights of citizens, and to other subfects. In regard to them all it may be safely said that the meaning and effect of this bill is to take from the general government an important part of its power to enforce the laws.

Another grave objection to the bill is its discrimination in favor of the state and against the national authority. The presence or employment of the army or navy of the United States is lawful under the terms of this bill at the place where an election is being held in a state to uphold the authority of a state government then and there in need of such military intervention, but unlawful to uphold the authority of the government of the United States then and there in need of such military intervention. Under this bill the presence and employment of the army or navy of the United States would be lawful and might be necessary to maintain the conduct of state elections against domestic violence that would overthrow it but would be unlawful to maintain the conduct of a national election against the same local violence that would overthrow it. This discrimination has never been attempted in any previous legislation by congress, and is not compatible with sound principles. In the early legislation of 1792 and of 1795, by which the militia of the states was the only military power resorted to for the execution of constitutional powers in support of state or national authority, both functions of the government were put upon the same footing. By the act of 1807 the employment of the army and navy was authorized for the performance of both constitutional duties in the same terms. In all later statutes on the same subject some measure of authority to the government has been accorded for the performance of its duties. No precedent has been found in any previous legislation, and no sufficient reasons have been given for the discrimination in favor of the state and against the national authority which this bill contains. Under the sweeping terms of this bill the national government is effectually shut out from the exercise of the right and from the discharge of an imperative duty to use the whole executive power whenever and wherever requiried for the enforcement of its laws. At places and timos where and when its elections are held, the employment of its organized armed forces for any such purpose would be an offense against the law unless called for by, and therefore upon permission of the authorities of the State in which the occasion arises. What is this but the substitution of the discretion of the state governments for the discretion of the government of the United States as to the performance of its own duties? In my judgment this is an abandoment of its obligations by the national government, a subordination of the national authority and an intrusion of state supervision over national duties which amounts in spirit and tendency to state supremacy. Although I believe that the existing statutes are abundantly adequate to completely prevent military interference with the elections in the sense in which the phrase is used in the title of this bill, and is employed by the people of this country, I shall find no difficulty in concurring in any additional legislation limited to that object which does not interfere with the indispensible exercise of the powers of the government and the constitution and laws.

Signed,
RUTHERFORD B. HAYES.

AN AMERICAN ROMANCE.

A Curious Case of Concealed Identity—A Judge On the Bench Under an Assumed Name.

[Cor. New Albany Ledger-Standard.[

Presely O'Bannon disappeared from Leavenworth, Ind., seven years ago, and was supposed by all to have been murdered. He was about thirty-five years of age, possessed some wealth, and was a successful lawyer in this county. He was a fine looking man, and lived in peaceful domestic relations with his wife, by whom he had two children. The wife was many years his junior, but looked up to him and loved him to idolatry.

The "skeleton of the closet" with this family was that the husband, though not a habitual drunkard, would at times indulge in prolonged sprees; it was during one of these that he started to attend a Masonic lodge in this town, distant five miles from home.

He only remembers now that he strolled around town till after dark, and that when some steamer landed at the wharf he went aboard of her.

When he came to himself weeks afterward, he was sawing wood for a farmer in southern Illinois. He made up his mind never to return home; his family he argued would be better off without him. His wife could procure a divorce, marry again and be happier than she had ever been with him. He settled finally at Vienna, Ill., became sober and industrious, amassed wealth and rose finally to the position of judge of the circuit court.

He brought a woman with him to Vienna who was introduced to his friends as his wife. He had picked her up in his travels, and she was willing to accept the position he offered her, with between them that he might abandon her at any moment. So, as O'Bannon in his new life had taken the name of Brown, the woman entered Vienna society as Mrs. Judge Brown.

It was a very strange fact that the man leaving as publicly as he did, was never traced out of the town of Leavenworth.

The horse he rode there was found tied in an out-of-the-way shed several days afterward, and as it was supposed he left home with money in his pocket to the amount of several hundred dollars, his friends concluded that he had met with foul play.

The nearly crazed wife spent a small fortune in trying to discover either her husband or the means of his death; but she spent in vain, and filled at last the position of seamstress in a lawyer's family at Corydon, Ind. She was described as being a "pretty, girlish-looking woman." I saw a portrait of her, and thought she had the saddest face I ever saw.

Well, when his friends believed at last that he was dead, they remembered that he had an insurance on his life for $5,000; so Lawyer Tracewell, an able attorney at this place, was employed to get the money for her, and was promised the half of it if he succeeded.

He was successful, and on the 13th of this month she was to receive the money. A few weeks before this, O'Bannon, as Judge Brown, fined one Nim Hudson, of Vienna, for some trifling act the sum of $100. Hudson had seen O'Bannon in the army years before, and had thought for a long time that he and Judge Brown were one and the same, but said nothing about it.

So now, for the sake of revenge, he wrote to our postmaster here, telling him his suspicions. The insurance company then offered Dr. Hawn, the postmaster, $600 to find O'Bannon.

The doctor accepted and started for Vienna, inquired for the judge, and recognized him immediately as the long-lost lawyer. The judge was surprised to see his old friend so suddenly, and to know that his wife was yet unmarried. "My God! Helena not married yet?" he exclaimed. "No," answered Hawn, "and she is a finer-looking woman than she was the day you left her."

Then the doctor told him about the insurance, and the judge seemed to be annoyed that he had come so near swindling the company. He proposed to go back immediately and "straighten things;" told Hawn that he always kept his business affairs arranged so that he could leave with two hours' notice.

So the next night O'Bannon arrived at his father's home, a few miles below here. The old man was struck speechless for several hours at the sight of his son, whom he had mourned for dead so long. Mr. O'Bannon's two boys, living with his father, were overjoyed to see him.

Mrs. O'Bannon was sent for. When she heard the story, she was willing to forget and forgive all but the "Mrs. Judge Brown" part, and refused to come.

Mrs. O'Bannon has applied for a divorce. Lawyer O'Bannon is still a handsome man; a gentleman that one would be apt to take a second look at. He possesses a certain fascinating power in conversation which compels one to listen against one's will, and to believe against one's convictions, and so, notwithstanding the man's past, the whole town and country seems rejoiced over Mr. O'Bannon's return.

LIVER PILLS

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD

READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Bilious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

CONSPIRATORS.

Berlin, May 12.—Political murders in Russia have been confined mostly to the provinces, and the stringent measures adopted seem to have cowed the conspirators. A MURDERESS CONFESSES.

Watertown, May 12.—Mrs. Charles Marihew, living near Deer River, who was supposed to have poisoned her brother-in-law and husband, confessed to the coroner the attempt upon her husband's life, and virtually admits killing her brother-in-law. INFLUX OF TRAMPS, ETC.

Mendota, Ill., May 12.—For some time past this city has been infested with tramps, drawn here by the expectation of getting work on the new line of double track between here and Arlington. Burglars and robbers made that a pretext for coming here too. A party of six was discovered lately on the track, half a mile south of here. The marshal attempted to arrest them, but they defied him, flourishing revolvers and threatening to shoot. The marshal retired, and when he returned with a force they had decamped.

A strong wind made it impossible to arrest the flames. The car shop of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad was burned, and some of the track and several freight cars were damaged. The mills and factories in the vicinity had a narrow escape. The elevator was valued at $10,000; insured for about $5,000. The fire was of incendiary origin.

Lightning Benefits.

[Burlington Hawkeye.]

When I boarded the train at New York yesterday morning, a man said to me:

"Big thing, this telegraph."

"Yes," I said, "it was big as a grape vine."

"No joking," he said. "I came here to New York yesterday, one hundred miles out of my way, to see a man. When I got here, I went to the St. Nicholas, and when I was ready to go out and see my man, by jokes, stranger; I had lost his address, and, by George, I couldn't think of his first name even. And his last name was only Johnson. Easy name to hunt, eh? I was left. You know what it is to find anybody in New York when you don't know his address. It is worse than finding an honest man. Well, this man was a new comer here; name wasn't in the directory. I asked questions till I made a fool of myself.

"Then I said to the telegraph operator, at the St. Nicholas, 'I'll keep me here a week. I've got to write clear to St. Louis to get that man's address.'

"'Telegraph,' the operator said.

"Well, I never thought of that before. I wrote a dispatch right away:

"'To Gettit & Kenpit, brokers, St. Louis—What's our man, Johnson's first name, and what's his address?'

"And in due course the answer came back: 'James P., St. Nicholas Hotel.'"

"What do you think of that, stranger? I went to the clerk and said: 'Is Mr. James P. Johnson in his room?'"

"'That is Mr. James P. Johnson,' said the clerk.

The man, stranger, was standing beside me, waiting for me to move so that he could speak to the clerk. And I had just sent one thousand and sixty-four miles to find out where he was. Funny, stranger, wasn't it?"

A Judge who Wouldn't Treat when It was His Turn.

[New York Herald, May 8.]

He had a flashy coat on, also a necktie of pronounced tint, and he paid his $10 fine with the air of a man who was liquidating the national debt. He hadn't been an hour out of court when he was back again. His offense was rank, they said. He had insisted on treating a virtuous policeman, who on account of a crowd being around had signified abhorrence of the temptation by a summary arrest.

"What!" cried his honor, "here again? Going about like a roaring lion, seeking to corrupt upright officials, eh? Trying to impair the integrity of the law's servants, are you? This outraged municipality demands ten dollars more."

"All right," said the prisoner. "Pass the tanner to the depitty," and he handed the bill to the chief clerk. "I am off again. By by!" He went into the market half an hour later and asked a horseradish man for a champagne cocktail. They tried to coax him off; but he said he would have a mixed drink or perish. Another officer told this of him in court, when he appeared there for the third time.

His honor looked abstracted. Then he said: "This country ought to be grateful to you for paying off taxes. Ten dollars more."

The prisoner paid and leaned back on the railing as he put the roll of bills away. There clearly was something on his mind. At last he lifted up his head and said quietly to the court:

"Judge, don't you think it's about time for you to do something?"

"What, sir?"

"Ain't you a-goin' t' treat! It's only friendly like. You'll put up a drink, now won't you?"

"How dare you ask such a thing?"

The prisoner turned away with a reproachful glance at the bench.

"Judge," he murmured, "I don't want to say you're small; I don't want to say you're a mean man. Oh, no! But I will observe that I never spent so much money in any house before without the boss treatin'. That's all."

He went off, the picture of despondency.

DR. C. McLANE'S

are not recommended as a remedy "for all the ills that flesh is heir to," but in affections of the liver, and in all Bilious Complaints, Dyspepsia and Sick Headache, or diseases of that character, they stand without a rival.

AGUE AND FEVER.

No better cathartic can be used preparatory to, or after taking Quinine.

As a simple purgative they are unequaled.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS.

The genuine are never sugar coated.

Each box has a red wax seal on the lid, with the impression DR. McLANE'S LIVER PILLS.

Each wrapper bears the signatures of C. McLANE and FLEMING BROS.

TUTT'S PILLS!

A NOTED DIVINE SAYS THEY ARE WORTH THEIR WEIGHT in GOLD

READ WHAT HE SAYS:

DR. TUTT:—Dear Sir: For ten years I have been a martyr to Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles. Last Spring your Pills were recommended to me; I used them (but with little faith). I am now a well man, have good appetite, digestion perfect, regular stools, piles gone, and I have gained forty pounds solid flesh. They are worth their weight in gold.

REV. R. L. SIMPSON, Louisville, Ky.

A TORPID LIVER

is the fruitful source of many diseases, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Costiveness, Dysentery, Bilious Fever, Ague and Fever, Jaundice, Piles, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint, Colic, etc.

Tutt's Pills exert a powerful influence on the Liver, and will with certainty relieve that important organ from disease, and restore its normal functions.

The rapidity with which persons take on flesh, while under the influence of these pills, of itself indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health and strength to the system.

CONSTIPATION.

Only with regularity of the bowels can perfect health be enjoyed. When the constipation is of recent date, a single dose of TUTT'S PILLS will suffice, but if it has become habitual, one pill should be taken every night, gradually lessening the frequency of the dose until a regular daily movement is obtained, which will soon follow.

CONSPIRATORS.

Berlin, May 12.—Political murders in Russia have been confined mostly to the provinces, and the stringent measures adopted seem to have cowed the conspirators. NEW POSSESSION.

A MURDERESS CONFESSES.

Watertown, May 12.—Mrs. Charles Merihew, living near Deer River, who was supposed to have poisoned her brother-in-law and husband, confessed to the coroner the attempt upon her husband's life, and virtually admits killing her brother-in-law. INFLUX OF TRAMPS, ETC.

Meadota, Ill., May 12.—For some time past this city has been infested with tramps, drawn here by the expectation of getting work on the new line of double track between here and Arlington. Burglars and robbers made that a pretext for coming here too. A party of six was discovered lately on the track, half a mile south of here. The marshal attempted to arrest them, but they pulled him, flourishing revolvers and threatening to shoot. The marshal retired, and when he returned with a force they had decamped.

A strong wind made it impossible to arrest the flames. The car shop of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad was burned, and some of the track and several freight cars were damaged. The mills and factories in the vicinity had a narrow escape. The elevator was valued at $10,000; insured for about $5,000. The fire was of incendiary origin.

Lightning Benefits.

(Hartington Hawkeye.)

When I boarded the train at New York yesterday morning, a man said to me:

"Big thing, this telegraph."

"Yes," I said, "it was big as a grape vine."

"No joking," he said. "I came here to New York yesterday, one hundred miles out of my way, to see a man. When I got here, I went to the St. Nicholas, and when I was ready to go out and see my man, by jokes, stranger: I had lost his address, and, by George, I couldn't think of his first name even. And his last name was only Johnson. Easy name to hunt, eh? I was left. You know what it is to find anybody in New York when you don't know his address. It is worse than finding an honest man. Well, this man was a new comer here; name wasn't in the directory. I asked questions till I made a fool of myself. Then I said to the telegraph operator, at the St. Nicholas, 'I'll keep me here a week. I've got to write clear to St. Louis to get that man's address.'

"'Telegraph,' the operator said.

"'Well, I never thought of that before. I wrote a dispatch right away: "To Gettit & Keapit, brokers, St. Louis. What's our man, Johnson's first name, and what's his address?"

"And in due course the answer came back: 'James P., St. Nicholas Hotel.'"

"What do you think of that, stranger? I went to the clerk and said: 'Is Mr. James P. Johnson in his room?'

"'That is Mr. James P. Johnson,' said the clerk.

The man, stranger, was standing beside me, waiting for me to move so that he could speak to the clerk. And I had just sent one thousand and sixty-four miles to find out where he was. Funny, stranger, wasn't it?"

A Judge who Wouldn't Treat when it was His Turn.

He had a flashy coat on, also a necktie of pronounced tint, and he paid his $10 fine with the air of a man who was liquidating the national debt. He hadn't been an hour out of court when he was back again. His offense was rank, they said. He had insisted on treating a virtuous policeman, who on account of a crowd being around had signified abhorrence of the temptation by a summary arrest.

"What!" cried his honor, "here again? Going about like a roaring lion, seeking to corrupt upright officials, eh? Trying to impair the integrity of the law's servants, are you? This outraged municipality demands ten dollars more."

"All right," said the prisoner. "Pass the tenner to the depitty," and he handed the bill to the chief clerk. "I am off again. By by!" He went into the market half an hour later and asked a horseradish man for a champagne cocktail. They tried to coax him off; but he said he would have a mixed drink or perish. Another officer told this of him in court, when he appeared there for the third time.

His honor looked abstracted. Then he said: "This country ought to be grateful to you for paying off taxes. Ten dollars more."

The prisoner paid and leaned back on the railing as he put the roll of bills away. There clearly was something on his mind. At last he lifted up his head and said quietly to the court:

"Judge, don't you think it's about time for you to do something?"

"What, sir?"

"Ain't you a-goin' t' treat! It's only friendly like. You'll put up a drink, now won't you?"

"How dare you ask such a thing?"

The prisoner turned away with a reproachful glance at the bench.

"Judge," he murmured, "I don't want to say you're small; I don't want to say you're a mean man. Oh, no! But I will observe that I never spent so much money in any house before without the boss treatin'. That's all."

He went off, the picture of despondency.

Of Interest to Everybody.

"Who was that handsome man that attracted so much attention at the Academy the other evening," asked a lady, a day or two since.

"Pshaw, he's not handsome, if he did attract attract attention. He's positively ugly when you come to look at him."

"Why did every body admire him so then?"

"That is not hard to explain. He was dressed in the latest style, and the best of tastes. His new spring suit fit him exactly, and was made up in a neat manner. Of course he got them of A. Foster, the leading merchant tailor of the city, No. 21 Calhoun street."

It is of interest to everybody to know that A. Foster is making clothes this year at prices that can't be beat. He has long been considered the Leading Fashionable Merchant Tailor of the city, and at the same time it is known that he makes clothes so cheap that anyone can afford to be well dressed. A plain man looks handsome in one of Foster's stylish, close fitting suits.

Success of the Project at Last Assured—Work to Begin at Once.

Last evening the consolidated board of trustees of the Masonic Temple Association met, at the office in the Immel block, and a general canvass of the situation was made. It was found that affairs had assumed a somewhat different aspect, and that there was no longer any reason for delay. Three additional $500 subscriptions to the capital stock were reported, the subscribers being Jesse L. Williams, Will Swinney and T. J. Tolan & Son. All About that Caucus.

The Gazette this morning printed a cock and bull story concerning a caucus of democratic councilmen alleged to have been held at M. Hamilton's residence last night. The story was made up with very little foundation. Mr. Hamilton was yesterday invited to an informal conference of democratic councilmen to be held last evening, and suggested his house as the most convenient place for meeeting. He did not invite the councilmen nor did he know who were to be present. The meeting did not select persons to fill the leading city offices nor do anything beyound making some arrangements which will tend to facilitate business to-night, and prevent interminable balloting for the minor offices. Only that, and nothing more, which knocks the Gazette's blood and bones article "galley-west," so to speak.

A Pleasant Wedding.

St. Peter's church, in the seventh ward, was well filled this morning, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Philip Graf and Miss Sophia Wessel, daughter of John Wessel, sr. The bride was handsomely attired in white swiss, with white silk court waist; the bridesmaid, Miss Lizzie Keintz, in white swiss. Mr. Fred Fasold was the groomsman. After the ceremony was over the happy couple repaired to Mr. Wessel's residence, No. 401 Lafayette street, where the festivities are now in progress. About 150 persons were invited to the reception, which will continue this evening. The bride and groom will leave to-night for an extended bridal tour. Joy go with them.

This morning he was taken before United States Commissioner Harper, who continued the case until 2 p. m. to-morrow. In default of bail Sanders was sent to jail.

An Economical Street Commissioner.

To the Editor of the Sentinel:

Mr. Dennis O'Brien, our worthy street commissioner, has made one of the most economical officers the city has ever had. A year ago the street committee estimated the expenses of carrying on that department at $15,000, but Mr. O'Brien has been so saving that he actually kept the amount down to less than $10,000. Honor to whom honor is due.

Took a Tumble.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night a loud crash was heard in the vicinity of the south depot, leading to the supposition that an earthquake or an explosion had taken place. Upon investigation it was found that the second floor of the building at No. 242 Calhoun street, occupied by Sedgwick's feed store had fallen in, bursting out the windows. Several hundred bushels of corn were stored on this floor. Damage about $200.

Of Interest to Everybody.

"Who was that handsome man that attracted so much attention at the Academy the other evening," asked a lady, a day or two since.

"Pshaw, he's not handsome, if he did attract attract attention. He's positively ugly when you come to look at him."

"Why did every body admire him so then?"

"That is not hard to explain. He was dressed in the latest style, and the best of tastes. His new spring suit fit him exactly, and was made up in a neat manner. Of course he got them of A. Foster, the leading merchant tailor of the city, No. 21 Calhoun street."

It is of interest to everybody to know that A. Foster is making clothes this year at prices that can't be beat. He has long been considered the Leading Fashionable Merchant Tailor of the city, and at the same time it is known that he makes clothes so cheap that anyone can afford to be well dressed. A plain man looks handsome in one of Foster's stylish, close fitting suits.

THE MASONIC TEMPLE.

Success of the Project at Last Assured—Work to Begin at Once.

Last evening the consolidated board of trustees of the Masonic Temple Association met, at the office in the Immel block, and a general canvass of the situation was made. It was found that affairs had assumed a somewhat different aspect, and that there was no longer any reason for delay. Three additional $500 subscriptions to the capital stock were reported, the subscribers being Jesse L. Williams, Will Swinney and T. J. Tolan & Son. The following is a complete list of those who have taken $500 stock each: S. B. Bond, J. M. Coombs, Mont. Hamilton, Chas. McCulloch, H. McKinnie, O. A. Simons, Fred. Eckert, A. C. Trentman, E. P. Bass's name does not appear in the above list from the fact that he expects to take a larger amount of stock. S. B. All About that Caucus.

The Gazette this morning printed a cock and bull story concerning a caucus of democratic councilmen alleged to have been held at M. Hamilton's residence last night. The story was made up with very little foundation. Mr. Hamilton was yesterday invited to an informal conference of democratic councilmen to be held last evening, and suggested his house as the most convenient place for meeeting. He did not invite the councilmen nor did he know who were to be present. The meeting did not select persons to fill the leading city offices nor do anything beyound making some arrangements which will tend to facilitate business to-night, and prevent interminable balloting for the minor offices. Only that, and nothing more, which knocks the Gazette's blood and bones article "galley-west," so to speak.

A Pleasant Wedding.

St. Peter's church, in the seventh ward, was well filled this morning, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Philip Graf and Miss Sophia Wessel, daughter of John Wessel, sr. The bride was handsomely attired in white swiss, with white silk court waist; the bridesmaid, Miss Lizzie Keintz, in white swiss. Mr. Fred Fasold was the groomsman. After the ceremony was over the happy couple repaired to Mr. Wessel's residence, No. 401 Lafayette street, where the festivities are now in progress. About 150 persons were invited to the reception, which will continue this evening. The bride and groom will leave to-night for an extended bridal tour. Joy go with them.

This morning he was taken before United States Commissioner Harper, who continued the case until 2 p. m. to-morrow. In default of bail Sanders was sent to jail.

An Economical Street Commissioner.

To the Editor of the Sentinel:

Mr. Dennis O'Brien, our worthy street commissioner, has made one of the most economical officers the city has ever had. A year ago the street committee estimated the expenses of carrying on that department at $15,000, but Mr. O'Brien has been so saving that he actually kept the amount down to less than $10,000. Honor to whom honor is due.

Took a Tumble.

Between 10 and 11 o'clock last night a loud crash was heard in the vicinity of the south depot, leading to the supposition that an earthquake or an explosion had taken place. Upon investigation it was found that the second floor of the building at No. 242 Calhoun street, occupied by Sedgwick's feed store had fallen in, bursting out the windows. Several hundred bushels of corn were stored on this floor. Damage about $200.
